

Sunglasses indoors: now OK

Photochromatic lenses – clear indoors but tinted in sunlight – have long carried a rep for being, well, Partridgey. Well, Alan is going to have to find some new multi-environment eyewear, as Transitions has a snazzy new addition to its Signature range – the Graphite Green lens. These afford superior colour and contrast to your vision thanks to the way eyes process different colours in the spectrum. And turn from glasses to sunglasses in a jiffy, which is still pretty sci-fi.

Transitions Graphite Green lenses available from selected opticians